3/18/01	Jamie Penich/ (21) Pennsylvania	University of Pittsburgh/ Keimyung University/ Undergrad, study abroad/ Taegu, South Korea	Itaewon, South Korea/ Intentional Injury, Homicide, crime/ A group of six students, including Jamie and a 19-year old Marshall University student, Kenzi Snider, were attending an exchange program at Keimyung University. Two weeks into the program, students went north to Seoul for St. Patrick's Day weekend. They stayed in an inexpensive hotel near the American air base. The crowds were later said to be rowdy. Before going to bed, Kenzi said she looked in on Jamie, and she was fine. In the morning, however, Kenzi found Jamie brutally beaten to death. A US Army criminal investigation team and the FBI questioned Kenzi. She confessed to the killing, though later recanted, saying the investigators had posed leading questions at a time when her own memory was impacted by trauma. While other students reported hearing sounds of a struggle, no one investigated. Ultimately, a South Korean judge said there wasn't enough evidence to proceed with a trial and Kenzi was released. Jamie's family, however, believes Kenzi murdered Jamie.	[Unable to find further information about Jamie.]

5/13/01	Shannon Martin/ (23) Kansas	University of Kansas/ University of Kansas/ Undergrad, study abroad, independent project/ Costa Rica	Golfito, Costa Rica/ Intentional Injury, Homicide/ This was Shannon’s second trip to Costa Rica. She was working on an honors senior project. This work involved collecting fern samples. Shannon had walked to town, but never returned to her host family. In the early morning, Shannon’s body was found near an abandoned airstrip. She’d been stabbed multiple times. In the aftermath, Shannon’s mother, Jeanette Stauffer, fought to bring her daughter’s killers to trial. Jeanette assembled a legal team and, after several years and at great expense, succeeded in obtaining convictions. https://www.deseretnews.com/article/842752/US-student-is-slain-in-Costa-Rica.html	Shannon had only final exams to finish her degree in biodiversity, ecology and evolutionary biology. She had been accepted into a summer plant-ecology research project at the University of Minnesota. She hoped to publish her work and apply to grad school.
