	(20) Florida	FSU International Program, Rabin Center/ Undergrad, study abroad/ Israel	Briana went hiking in Masada with other students. She became separated from her group. When the student's reached a tourist center, they realized Briana was no longer with them. An hour-and-a-half later, Briana was found dead in a ravine 26-feet from the hiking path. The cause of death was unclear—dehydration, a fall, a medical event, some combination? When Briana's body was returned to the US, it was deemed too late to do an autopsy. The Department of State had deferred to local authorities and a subsequent Israeli death certificate did not give cause of death, rather said "pending lab tests." The Israeli news agency Haaretz said the group leader who accompanied the students was not a licensed guide. Moreover, three students were permitted to hike down from Masada, even though the time was nearing 11am, when the trail would be closed for heat. Weather records from that day warned of record-setting temperatures of 100-degrees. http://www.miamiherald.com/news/local/community/broward/article21493602.html	secrets to," Briana was a criminal justice major who was "eager to graduate." She dreamed of becoming an FBI agent and had chosen FSU's program in Israel because it was focused on counter terrorism. Briana was planning to return to the US, graduate and participate in an internship with the Winston-Salem police department.

8/30/15 Sunday	Nicholas Upton/ (19) Connecticut	George Washington University/ University of Cape Town/ Undergrad, study abroad/ South Africa	South Africa/ Drowned/ Nick and five other students went swimming on South Africa's Wild Coast. At the surf-line, Nick appeared to get into difficulty, then disappear. Students attempted to rescue him, but realized they could not. They went to the lodge to call for help, but "the slow emergency response hindered rescue attempts," including "when students ran for help...the lodge didn't call police immediately." Nick's family raised $83,000 through a GoFundMe campaign. With this money, they were able to fund helicopters. Five days later, Nick's body was found. http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/gwu-student-drowns-south-africa-studying-article-1.2345325 http://www.legacy.com/obituaries/ctpost/obituary.aspx?pid=175813118 https://www.eastoncourier.com/27028/friends-and-teachers-remember-	Nick was an International Studies major, interested in foreign intelligence, especially African studies. Nick's father described his son as a "quiet leader" who had gotten his high school to offer credits for Swahili, which Nick then studied online. Nick was a member of Kappa Alpha Order and GW's rowing team.
